Background

The inter-governmental negotiations of the Post-2015 Development Agenda is entering a critical stage. The Open Working Group on the Sustainable Development Goals (OWG SDG) has resulted in an outcome document that includes 17 goals and 169 targets. Meanwhile, the Intergovernmental Committee of Experts on Sustainable Development Financing (ICESDF) also released a report with recommendations that will be reviewed by the UN General Assembly this year.

The UN Secretary General is expected to produce a synthesis report based on those inputs in Nov. 2014. His report will be a main text for inter-governmental negotiations which is scheduled to begin in Feb. 2014 and continues till the adoption of new development goals for 2016-2030 at the next UN General Assembly in September 2015.

Issues related to justice and governance are reflected in the proposed goal No 16 in the outcome document of the OWG SDG “to promote peaceful and inclusive societies for sustainable development, provide access to justice for all and build effective, accountable and inclusive institutions at all levels.”

During the OWG SDGs process, Goal 16 was one of the most contentious issues and it is expected to be the case in the next phase of negotiations. Many CSOs including us have advocated the access to justice and democratic and accountable governance as a priority issue in the post-2015 development process as we believed that access to justice, rule of law, peace and human security are crucial elements that must be part of a universal and transformative Post-2015 agenda.

Civil society organizations and networks will continue working to ensure that access to justice and governance are kept as a high level ambition in the Post 2015 Development Agenda.

INFID, Asia Development Alliance (ADA) and Asia Democracy Network (ADN) as well as Beyond 2015 will organize an open forum on justice and governance under the theme “Ensuring Justice and Governance in Post-2015 Development Agenda”.
